About us

The tm.meditacio.hu blog, launched on June 4, 2024 and classified as a press product, is a space where we can share our thoughts and experiences about the possibilities and experiences offered by the simple and effective meditation method, Transcendental Meditation (TM). TM is a practice practiced by millions worldwide and has its roots in ancient Indian philosophy. In recent years, more and more people have been discovering the beneficial effects of this method in their everyday lives.

The goal of our blog is to share with our readers the theoretical background of the practice of "useful TM", transcendental meditation, the results of scientific research, as well as personal experiences and inspirations, which will help them gain deeper insight into the world of this ancient meditation technique.

Svāmī Brahmānanda Sarasvatī,
a TM forrása

We emphasize that although we recognize Transcendental Meditation, believe in its benefits and effectiveness, and encourage everyone to learn this effective method, we are not part of the international organization officially representing the method. The publisher and editors of the blog do not belong to the offshore companies that have been the official representative of TM since 2006, nor to the "country" called Global Country of World Peace, which claims political objectives as its own – a single country and not recognized by the UN. We also have no legal relationship with the Hungarian Maharishi Vedic Science Foundation, founded by the non-Hungarian-speaking Raja (Hindi/Sanskrit: king) and his associates, who "lead" Hungary.

Another goal of the tm.meditacio.hu blog is to criticize the leaders with offshore backgrounds who have crowned themselves kings (rajas) against the TM movement, and we present to the public in Hungarian the public criticisms of former TM movement leaders and well-known figures. In our blog, we also review the video appearances and interviews about Maharishi Mahesh Yogi's secret double life made public by people who spent decades with him.

We are great admirers and appreciators of the ancient Indian tradition created by Adi Shankara (Sankaracsarya), and the deep meditation taught and passed on by this tradition, which became known in the West as transcendental meditation. According to the Hungarian Intellectual Property Office, the terms “TM” and “transcendental mediation” mean and cover the same thing. The TM trademark with registration number 158799 has been owned by the Great Group for Hungary Foundation for nearly 20 years – continuously. We regret that there have been abuses related to the use of the trademark.

We also regret that the tradition founded by Adi Shankara (Sankaracsarya) has been confused with the Global Country of World Peace, which established a “global” country, a central bank, printed its own money (Raam), and ceremonially distributed crowns (in exchange for $1 million) – each country has a crowned king, a raja. Furthermore, offshore companies have been established in tax havens, international royalties are collected through these companies, these dubious companies own various trademarks, few people were aware of this – until now. We are not aware that the Adi Shankara tradition has bestowed royal titles on anyone, collected royalties in tax havens, or established a central bank. That is why we consider the Global Country of World Peace led by the Rajas (Kings) to be an “impure” organization, and we have the impression that it is a political-economic initiative that does not represent the original TM values, nor the Adi Shankara tradition. Our goal is nothing more than to provide authentic information about this “organization”, to provide an alternative for those who choose the original Adi Shankara tradition free from politics and offshore

Our goal is not to discourage people from TM, quite the opposite. Our goal is to draw people's attention, within the framework of freedom of speech, to the need to treat the offshore organization of crowned kings, which shines in the golden light of art, with reservations and criticism. In addition to enjoying the beneficial effects of TM, they should participate in programs and courses organized by international organizations with an offshore background, and feel free to ask clarifying questions about what they read in our blog to the current TM movement leaders and their TM teachers.

At the same time, those interested in TM – and its practitioners – also have the right to know that His Holiness Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, the creator of the Western version of transcendental meditation, lived a hypocritical life: while he expected celibacy (voluntary renunciation of sexual intercourse) from certain circles of those working in the movement and practicing TM and its advanced methods as a way of life – married couples holding leading positions, staff members, and participants in the Purusha and Mother Divine Programs – he himself kept at least 16 lovers over decades. There was also an American movement leader who rejected his advances, and according to the woman's account, she was publicly humiliated by Maharishi for this. We believe it is important that the current TM movement leadership should face these devastating facts and provide an explanation for Maharishi's double life and hypocritical lifestyle in order to address this moral dilemma, and last but not least, that the current leaders and their loyal followers stop perpetuating the myth of his "holiness". This wish of ours seems like a vain dream for now.

WE WISH EVERYONE A GOOD MEDITATION!

János Szász, Sr.

The pioneer of TM in Hungary, who carried the philosophy of the original TM movement at heart and opposed what it had become, i.e. an offshore money-hungry, authoritarian, neo-Hindu sect-like system that was unable to realize the initial goals of Guru Dev and Maharishi. János Szász, Sr., saw clearly, and discussed with his son many times, that people and interest groups had infiltrated the TM movement, who ostensibly served Maharishi's goals but in reality served interests coming from outside.

Szász János Szász senior in the mid-2000s as national leader , Szász János Jr. and Szász Sr. around 1998 in the TM center on Thököly Street, District VII

From 1977 until his death, János Szász Sr. believed in the original TM movement without ceasing, and in the possibility of changing the Hungarian destiny and bringing the divided nation back together, at least at the level of collective consciousness. During the 1977 TM teacher training, he understood the theory of collective consciousness and the benefits of the Maharishi effect.

During the teacher training, he wrote a beautiful poem in English about the history of the TM movement. The poem will be shared in two weeks.

Because of his Transylvanian, or Székely, roots, he thought only of the global 15 million Hungarians and that the creation of a permanent TM-Szidhi group of at least 500 people was the solution to our sad national history, which began about 1000 years ago, when we abandoned ancient spiritual traditions. The Maharishi influence that he learned about at the teacher training and the scientific explanations associated with it convinced him ("A Core Course on Invincibility" was part of the course) to dedicate his life to this knowledge. He raised his son in this spirit.

In August 1979, he participated in the world's largest group TM-Sidhi experiment in Massachusetts, where over 3,500 people meditated together for a month, with the aim of revealing the results of the Maharishi effect to the entire American continent. The experiment proved to be a huge success. In the previous two years, the effect had been tried in Rhodesia (Zimbabwe), Honduras, El Salvador, and several smaller countries where there were riots. Everywhere, group meditation improved the situation in sufficient numbers - it brought peace.

So in August 1979, Maharishi encouraged the teachers to establish a permanent group at Maharishi International University, which would be sufficient to stabilize the collective consciousness of the USA, which would put the country on a path of development. As we know, the USA was extremely successful: it had recovered from high inflation (23%), hippyism, economic stagnation, terror and nationalist movements, and unsuccessful foreign policy activities. This was at a time when a critical mass of TM teachers and sidhas were doing their morning and evening communal meditation on the university grounds. Scientists were studying the news and publishing statistics and scientific studies on the Maharishi effect.

At the beginning of this process, at Maharishi's open request, Sr. János Szász gave up his San Francisco business in 1980 and moved to Fairfield, Iowa with his son, to be close to Maharishi University and to participate in the emerging large-scale joint meditations involving 1,600 people (the square root of 1% of the population) and strengthening America.

In 1986, he joined the Purusha TM monk group, and as part of this, he spent half a year in Maharishi's ashram in India, where Maharishi himself appointed him as the TM representative of Hungary and sent him to Budapest to hold press conferences about TM and launch the domestic movement. There was news about this on Hungarian radio, and an article about the event was published in two more newspapers. Maharishi launched this campaign in 1000 cities around the world in 1986, but behind the Iron Curtain in communist countries, only János represented the movement in the campaign that day.

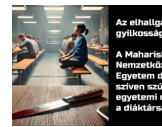

Going back to John's teacher training, he became a TM teacher in Switzerland in 1977 and was personally made a TM teacher by Maharishi himself, which is known to teachers as the final step of the teacher training, when Maharishi transmits the secret mantras and other confidential teachings through audio tapes and the course leaders declare that the person has become a TM teacher. In 1977, these final steps were given by Maharishi personally to John without audio tapes and to the other teacher training participants at the Teacher Training Course (TTC) held in Switzerland at the large center in Seelisberg in the presence of Maharishi. This was considered a special procedure even at that time.

to Hungary. He soon became actively involved in the work of the domestic TM movement. Unfortunately, by then, worrying signs were already appearing in the TM movement at the domestic and international levels. I remember talking to a TM teacher in Szeged-Zenta about the bad signs, which the teacher called “counter-selection”, where good people are replaced, other people are added, and the whole thing starts to go downhill, which finally culminated when neo-Hindu raja kings and anti-democratic politics appeared at the helm of the TM movement, which nullified the original TM philosophy that meditation can be introduced in any country, in any political system and religion, because it is neutral from that point of view.

János Szász Sr. led the very successful TM center in Budapest, where more than 1,500 people learned meditation. At that time, this was about 70% of the domestic TM education. They achieved this as two teachers by turning a significant part of the course fee back into marketing (there was also a 50% royalty). Because of this, the two János did not take any salary for many years. The whole thing also operated at a bit of a loss. The teaching was the point and not the financial ones. Later, when it was revealed that Maharishi's master Guru Dev encouraged people not to ask for money for the teaching and not to live off it, it became clear that they were doing their work dharmically.

In 2004, János Szász senior became the leader of the Hungarian TM movement (national leader), this lasted until 2008, when the golden-crowned raja took over. János could not stand the crowned line, but he thought Maharishi had forced him into it. He had a devastating opinion of the whole thing and how it had happened for decades. Sabotage! The wars and arms trade continue and the big world politics consume good initiatives. The life story of Szász senior can be downloaded here.

In 1975, at the age of 9, he learned the children's TM technique in California, and then the adult technique at the age of 10. At the same time, his father and his Transylvanian grandmother also learned the TM technique. A year later, in 1976, his father, Szász János Szász, Sr., enrolled in the TM Teacher Training Course (TTC) in light of the many good experiences. In 1977, his father became a TM teacher, and in 1978 he also completed the TM-Sidhi program, which at that time only TM teachers could complete. From 1978, their large Californian house became a large-scale TM center, and many TM teachers from all over the world visited their house. This is how the jr. János Szász was introduced to the TM movement, its history, legends, and was conceived by his father and the desire to help the fate of the Hungarian nation with the TM technique, group TM and TM-Sidhi practice.

North American continent. At this residential, Maharishi told those present to move to Fairfield, Iowa, and live in the Maharishi International University community, so that the United States would have 1,600 TM-Sidhi practitioners. After the Amherst residential, János Szász Jr.'s father announced that they would move to the MIU community within six months, which they did.

János Szász Jr. spent a year in the 9th grade of Fairfield Public School, where he met many of his classmates whose parents were TM and TM-Sidhi practitioners. During that year (1980-1981), the meditating teenagers developed a desire to have their own TM high school. In 1981, Maharishi approved the establishment of MIU High School (then known as MIU High School) on the MIU campus. Thus, János Szász Jr. became one of the founding students of this great high school, which later merged with the junior high school and was known as MSAE, and is now known as the Maharishi School (maharishischool.org). In 1983, he learned the TM-Sidhi program, attending the MIU dome with thousands of others for a shared meditation. He graduated from Maharishi High School in 1984.

Dear Mr. Szász:

It is my great pleasure to congratulate you on the completion of the requirements for a Bachelor of the Science of Creative Intelligence degree (B.S.C.I.) from Maharishi European Research University (Switzerland).

You have shown great dedication and perseverance in your studies of Maharishi's Vedic Science and Technology, and I feel confident that you will use this knowledge to benefit every area of society—in a manner that fulfills the responsibilities of those who have had the good fortune to receive this knowledge.

I look forward to your continuing success in pursuing projects to make the knowledge and technologies of Maharishi's Vedic Science available to everyone so that life may be lived in happiness and perfect health, in peace and prosperity.

Yours sincerely, scandals that eventually led to the creation of the fact-finding blog tm.meditacio.hu.

After this period, he discovered a lot about the double life of the TM organization and Maharishi, and he came across the TM community of several thousand people, who for various reasons were also disillusioned with the TM organization, but like him, the TM technique itself was considered useful by the members of the community.

In 2000, János Szász Jr. founded the Great Group for Hungary Foundation with his father and a doctor. János Szász Jr. was the chairman of the board of trustees of the foundation between 2000 and 2005, and then became the curator of the foundation again after 2019, a position he holds to this day. The goals of the foundation include teaching the TM technique and group practice of the TM and TM-Szidhi programs. Between 2004 and 2016, the foundation was the central organization of the Hungarian TM organization, the so-called “national office”. The foundation owns the “TM” and “TM-Szidhi” trademarks in Hungary without interruption.

Statement by János Szász Jr.

I dedicate the blog tm.meditacio.hu, which was launched on my father's birthday, June 4, 2024, to his memory.

I still recommend the TM program to some people and practice it. I have never left the TM movement, but I have never joined the Global Country of World Peace, and I have not signed any contracts with the organizations of the crowned kings and their offshore companies. I have not taken any oath to the Maharaja, I am neither his servant nor his subject. I am not a citizen of his country. I have remained a member of the original TM movement. I find it amazing how many TM teachers and TM practitioners do not know the difference between the TM movement and the Rajah kingdom.

The Rajas have discredited the original TM movement and made it almost impossible for governments to support or implement a TM program. I absolutely disagree with the royal structure and the spectacular and open rapprochement of the Indian TM movement with the RSS (Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh, a paramilitary nationalist organization) and other Indian political organizations that are neo-Hindu and extremely nationalistic. In India, the RSS is considered a terrorist organization, even linked to train bombings. The current Rajas, the kings of TM, are in league with them – it is terrible.

Our short film about RSS can be viewed in Hungarian here, the English version of our film was made by a foreign Raja-critic website. The English version can be viewed here.

I distance myself from the initiative of the TM royal central bank and the political publication about the power of Ram Raj (the supreme king of the world) related to it. I do not agree with their anti-democratic approach, for example, with the fact that the king – Dr. Tony Nader – openly incited against the democratic state system on his social media page. I also do not agree with the fact that they established dozens of private offshore companies, these companies officially represent TM, have registered and are still registering TM and Maharishi trademarks all over the world, including in Hungary. I find it regrettable and shameful that these offshore companies bearing the name of Maharishi are listed in the same database as various dictators and white-collar criminals.

I am convinced that Maharishi's guru, Guru Dev, would not support this offshore profit-hungry approach and the shift towards extreme nationalism, or cooperation with such organizations.

What I see is not the TM movement I joined 50 years ago.

In the Sacred Tradition of TM, I do not see a single crown, I do not see a central bank, and I do not see any political activity that would establish a country. No political activity was carried out by the masters of the Sacred Tradition. The TM kingdom is believed to violate the political traditions of nations. It is not fair to hide from those interested in TM what the TM movement has become. I consider the worldview of the current organization, especially for young people, to be dangerous, and also to be included in a political system that proclaims a global kingdom, is anti-democratic, and hides behind a spiritual guise.

Although TM is useful, the organization is the culprit.

We must return to the original traditions of Adi Shankara and Guru Dev, teaching TM for free if possible, since Guru Dev did not accept money either. The money-centric attitude should be eliminated. The banned TM teachers should apologize and be allowed to teach TM. Openly admitting and clarifying the previous scandalous events is essential for the purification of the TM movement, and this is guaranteed by accepting and adhering to the ethical and moral code of the two TM teachers, Rich Archer and Philip Goldberg. The Archer-Goldberg ethical code was discussed at a Harvard University conference.

I imagine a new momentum for the new generation, closing and transcending the past.

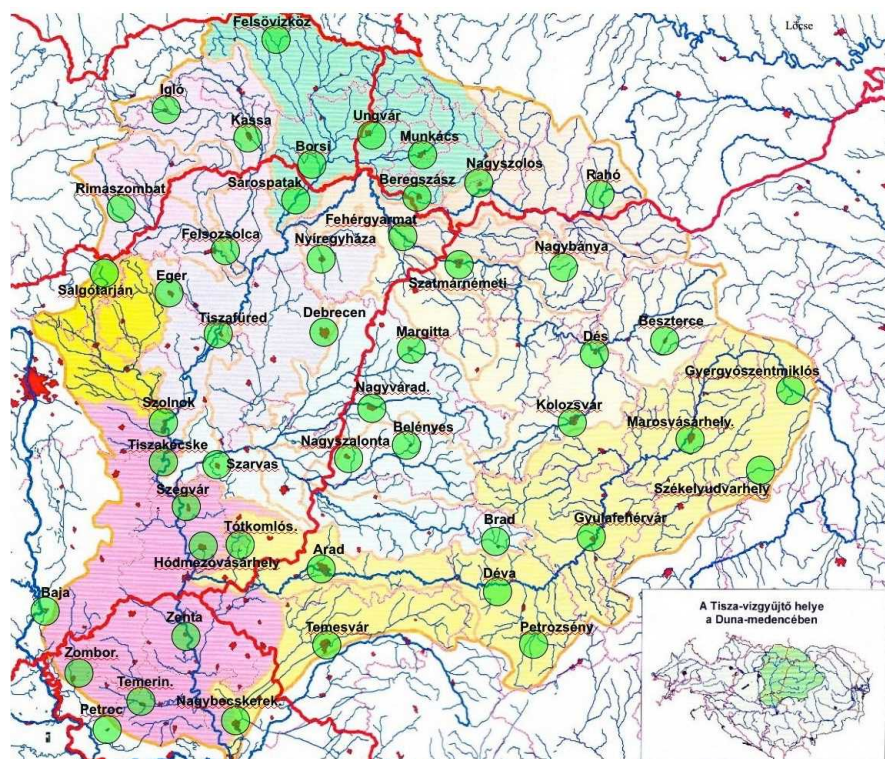

Twenty-one years ago – from the first day of my father's personal leadership – in 1984, I joined a large-scale environmental program initiative, which can be supplemented with consciousness-raising technologies in order to raise the level of collective consciousness in Hungary and Central Europe.

Tisza Program – János Szász Sr. and János Szász Jr.'s plan for the creation of the large group

There are 48 TM centers planned within the Tisza river basin, each of which would have 100 TM-Szidhi practitioners participating in a joint program. This would be part of a large-scale environmental, industrial and social program.

The 48 environmental protection offices would be located in the Tisza river basin, which would be established with the support of city governments and 5 countries.

The foreign and environmental ministers of the five countries of the Tisza River Basin were present in the meeting room of the Szeged Municipality with the mayors of the 48 cities and signed a joint declaration of intent on the need for our Tisza River Basin Program.

We held a 3-day conference in the European Union Parliament in Brussels with the members of the EU Environment Committee, with the participation of 70 environmental, economic and social experts from 30 countries. Later, the permanent group practice of the 4,800-person (48 cities x 100 people) TM-Szidhi program was integrated into this program – as a secondary objective – and the opportunity to participate TM course on site in the 10-day Tisza program training of 170,000 public employees and relevant experts.

Our Tisza Program held a conference at the largest political event in Central Europe, where the leaders of the Polish Environmental Committee, the head of the Polish Water Management Office, the head of one of the world's largest climate research institutes, an environmental pollution expert from a world-renowned English university, the head of a German environmental satellite image processing company, and a water diplomat from the Turkish state were present. We discussed the detailed environmental challenges with the experts, as similar problems arise in the global group of twelve river basins brought together under the leadership of the Tisza Program.

The panel discussion resulted in a statement by Anna Paluch, a national representative of the Polish lower house of parliament and vice-chairwoman of the environmental committee, in which she explained how important the presented Tisza and other watershed programs are for everyone and for the next generation. The statement can be read below:

Those present: Anna Paluch, Lower House Member, Poland - moderator of panel

Alicja Zajac, Senator, Senate of the Republic of Poland, Poland
Przemyslaw Dacia, President, The State Water Holdings (PGW WP), Poland

Tuğba Evrim Maden, Hydropolitics Expert, Ph.D, Turkish Water Institute (SÜEN, Turkey)

Alistair Boxall, Professor of Environmental Science, University of York, United Kingdom

Trond Martin Dokken, Executive Vice-Pres. for Climate, NORCE Norwegian Research Centre AS, Norway

"Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,

This project, which you saw in the presentation, is a plan for a joint water cooperation, gives us the chance, with proper care and responsibility, for the nature we give our generation, and to pass on to the next generation, the clean rivers, the safe rivers, to the populations that live along the rivers. The rivers that are the source of our lives for all of us here on earth. The rivers that fulfill the many functions discussed here, but keep in mind that this is also a source of water for the human population, a source of water for the economy, industry, agriculture. Rivers are the habitat of many plants and animal species, and rivers are the backbone of ecosystems that live and cannot without water.

A sense of responsibility is our role as those who own this earth. To do this in a very thoughtful, predictable, frugal and smart way when they use these natural resources. This is the joint responsibility that lies with us, and no one can pardon us from this."

protection initiative for the water protection of European river valleys. On one hand, the Oder basin, as we know, flows between the Polish, German and Czech borders. These are the countries that are fully cooperating, fully ratified on the basis of the Schengen area, which means that there is almost complete legal agreement as these countries comply with the EU legal order. The next river is the Tisa River, which is located in the territory of Slovakia, Ukraine, Romania, Hungary and in Serbia respectively. This area is the most complex in terms of legal systems and the additional catchment area mentioned by the Turkish representative is the Maritsa River, which flows through Greece, Turkey and Bulgaria.

Here, as you can see, they are countries with different legal systems and have different levels of governmental obligations regarding the management of river basins. This project will be crystallized at forthcoming conferences where I think there is a chance to get support. Because, ladies and gentlemen, only multilateral international

The project's professional background is provided by the newly founded Tisza-völgyi Agrár Kutatás-fejlesztési cluster.

The agricultural universities of the five countries of the Tisza basin have joined forces in our organization and have entered into an agri-food development cooperation, which is based on our Tisza Program. The picture shows the deans of about 35 agricultural universities. The main sponsor and signatory of the meeting was János Szász Jr. (see in the picture: the 5th person from the right, in a light suit, behind astronaut Bertalan Farkas). event was reported by numerous newspapers.

The following section is related to our Clean Program because we discussed with the largest technology experts in another country and it turned out that Hungary has a material left over from mining production that can be processed, useful metals can be extracted from it and the economic situation of Hungary can be significantly improved.

In a committee room of the Parliament, in the presence of two committee chairs, the Tisza Program presented the country's debt repayment plan. János Szász Jr. is the second person on the right in the picture and the sponsor of the initiative.

Our Tisza River Basin Program presented the mining program in the Hungarian parliament, which could generate 80,000 billion forints (approx. 200 billion dollars) in profit for the Hungarian state. Through our lobbying, we achieved that the parliamentary committee's minutes state that the profit should be used to pay off the state debt, which is 53,000 billion forints, meaning that approx. 27,000 billion forints would remain for national development.

The mining advisor of the Prime Minister's Office gave lectures under the auspices of the Ministry of Development in which he openly and publicly demonstrated in presentations that the entire Hungarian state debt could be paid off with this mining program. So, it was recorded in the minutes in the presence of two parliamentary committee chairs, and then the Ministry of Development gave lectures on this possibility led by the most competent mining expert.

According to one calculation, the value of the Hungarian forint could be increased so much that one euro would be worth 100 HUF, meaning that people would earn four times more due to the appreciation of our national currency, thus raising Hungary's standard of living to that of Austria. In this complex program – which includes reducing pollution in the Tisza basin, solving social problems and the economic development of the region – János Szász Jr. would integrate consciousness development and the possibility of raising collective consciousness through the Maharishi effect. János Szász Jr. can personally present the detailed documentation and protocols to those seriously interested in the topic, especially TM teachers.

Post-note:

As you can see, deans of renowned universities, heads of local governments, members of parliamentary committees, members of parliament, ministries, representatives of at least 25 renowned foreign universities, foreign politicians and leaders knowledgeable in the subject were negotiating partners or signatories in this complex program. Over the years, we have held numerous conferences in several countries with the aforementioned leaders and professors, and this is how the Tisza Program was formed.

Of course, the national security people of Hungary and several countries know about our initiative, they are monitoring the process and us in detail and their mandate is to protect the people of their own country, e.g. representatives, local government leaders, university leaders, and institutions, from coming into contact with companies - either indirectly or directly - in an international program that will ruin them, their institution, and their country.

Emails received from TM teachers, including John Konhaus, which highlighted their sectarian, demanding, disregarding national values, and possibly punishable acts, could have come to the attention of national security services. For example, my criminal complaint against the MVTA (Maharishi) Foundation for deviant acts, and the criminal complaint against John Konhaus for attempted extortion. This also discredited TM.

That is why I distanced myself from the golden-crowned TM rajas who founded countries, established central banks, tried to acquire territories within existing countries under scandalous circumstances (we will write about this in the future), operate through offshore companies, and visibly represent neo-Hinduism. These things can even get the aforementioned reputable people, such as deans or mayors, into trouble one by one. The situation was much better in the old TM movement. I would be irresponsible if I supported a raja system and got reputable leaders into trouble, who could lose an election or be fired from their jobs because of it.

With the blessing of János Szász Sr. as national leader, we joined the Tisza initiative in 2004, 11 days after his appointment as national leader. He significantly supported the Tisza project with 3/4 of his saved money. János Szász Jr. also invested 600 million forints in the project, which also 90% of the company's dividends for years, so there is a chance that the original TM movement will rise to a worthy place, and large meditation groups will be created, and everything will change in Central Europe. If not, then the risk was worth it karmically.

However, my father's name cannot be confused with the disgraceful raja system. My name cannot be linked to it either. The many mayors, government officials, university leaders, etc., should know if they look into it that I have distanced myself from the gold-crowned anti-national swindlers. So the question is how can transcendental meditation according to the Shankara tradition (the sacred tradition of TM) be taught in the Tisza Initiative. The answer came when ITMA was founded. Since I doubt that the original TM movement will return and it will still be mandatory to be in the raja kingdom, I am thinking about alternative solutions founded by foreign TM teachers with 55 years of experience and high positions in the movement.

One thing is for sure, I cannot discredit or bring into trouble those many official and unofficial people connected to the Tisza program. That is why the tm.meditacio.hu blog was created, so that if they look into it, they will see that I have nothing to do with the offshore-crown scam.
